

Alliance of Civic Technologists CONGRESS!

What's ACT Congress?

The Alliance of Civic Technologists (ACT) is a decentralized network of civic technology volunteer organizations, providing opportunities to connect, learn, and grow.

ACT Congress is a gathering, open to all and hosted by ACT member organizations, to discuss technology and community work for social good, to work collaboratively on local and national projects, and to build community.

This year's ACT Congress is October 16-18 in Orlando, FL at the Conduit (Lake Ivanhoe).

Who Will be There?

- ◆ ACT Member Organizations: Organizations from across the United States, including Code for Philly, CodeSF, and others, who organize volunteers in tech and community projects.
- ◆ People of all backgrounds: Anyone is welcome to attend, including nonprofit and community members from the host city, Orlando, FL.

What to Expect:

Unconferences

An unconference is a participant-led gathering. Instead of a fixed agenda, attendees suggest topics, form small groups, and shape the conversations together. Part of CityCamp will be dedicated to unconference sessions.

Volunteering

Orlando nonprofits, community groups, and civic organizations will be there to share real tech needs, get help from volunteers, and connect with people who can support their work.

Skill Building

Learn practical skills for civic tech and community work, such as project planning, volunteer onboarding, data tools, accessibility, AI, design, and building sustainable tech projects, with planned presentations from ACT leaders.

Get Involved:

◆ RSVP to Attend

Join ACT members, Orlando nonprofits, civic tech volunteers, students, and community partners for a weekend of collaboration. Come to meet people, learn new skills, help local organizations think through tech needs, and find projects you may want to support.

◆ Propose a Presentation or Topic

Bring a workshop, demo, discussion, or question for the group. Topics can include civic tech tools, AI for social good, volunteer organizing, data ethics, accessibility, open-source projects, or lessons from your own community work.

Propose a session: email congress@civictechnologists.org
